

21 September 2023 – TWO significant agreements were sealed in Penang today, marking a momentous milestone, with each holding the promise of a transformative impact on the state.

Chief Minister Chow Kon Yeow was present to witness the signing of the Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) between YGL Convergence Berhad and Digital Penang, as well as an agreement forged between YGL Convergence Berhad and Exabytes Network Sdn Bhd in Komtar.

Digital Penang was represented by its SME & Community Development director Khooi Chu Boon, YGL Convergence by its chief executive officer Yeap Kong Chean, and Exabytes Network by its executive vice-president & head of Enterprise Business Eric Foo.

Chow congratulated the three parties involved for their visionary efforts and partnerships. He expressed optimism that these agreements would translate into tangible benefits for businesses, the people, and the state.

Regarding the MoU signing between YGL Convergence and Digital Penang, Chow highlighted its role in creating a platform for micro and small enterprises within the manufacturing sector to immerse themselves in Industry 4.0.

“This concept is poised to revolutionise business operations, offering access to cutting-edge knowledge and resources that will better equip local entrepreneurs to adapt to the rapidly evolving technological landscape.

“This translates to increased efficiency, reduced operational costs, and enhanced competitiveness for these businesses, marking a significant step towards ensuring that Penang’s manufacturing sector remains relevant and resilient amidst global challenges,” Chow said in his speech.

He said by extending Industry 4.0 solutions to micro and small-sized enterprises, their initiative will empower these businesses to harness the power of data analytics, automation, and smart manufacturing – resources that were previously out of reach for smaller companies.

Chow believes that this transformation will result in a substantial improvement in productivity and product quality, benefitting not only individual businesses but also reverberating through the entire supply chain to positively impact the overall economy of Penang.

YGL actively participated in the themed "Building Engines for Growth." This significant event was hosted at the Sheraton PJ Hotel and aimed to foster discussions on various critical topics such as industry prospects and trends, Sustainability and ESG (Environmental, Social, and Governance), Government support programs, alternative funding options, and the forthcoming era of automation.

YGL made its presence felt at the conference by establishing a booth where we showcased our products, distributed brochures, and displayed digital banners to engage with the attendees.

Dato' Sulaiman Mohd Tahir, the CEO of AmBank Group, commended YGL for its pivotal role in digitizing and elevating the operations of small and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs) to the next level, aligning them with the principles of Industry 4.0. This recognition underscores the importance of embracing a more intelligent and sustainable future. It is indeed time for businesses to focus their vision on a future characterized by enhanced efficiency and environmental responsibility.

YGL believed that by working together with our partners and customers, we can help SMEs to thrive and succeed.
